

BRITISH DIPLOMACY STRAINS TO PREVENT SESSION OF LEAGUE

Endeavors to Dissuade Spain From Insisting Council Is Against Intervention

MAY INVOLVE EUROPE

Britain Has Been Trying For Weeks to Prevent Invoking League Covenant

By Kingsbury Smith
(L. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Nov. 28.—(INS)—With the prestige of the League of Nations at stake, British diplomacy strained today to dissuade Spain from insisting on a meeting of the League Council to act against "Italian and German armed intervention" in the civil war.

To hurl the intervention quarrel into the heated atmosphere of Geneva brings all Europe into the Spanish affair, in the view of British authorities.

Another failure by the League to produce results, on top of the Manchukuo and Abyssinian affairs would, moreover, be a fatal blow to British and French hopes for resurrection of the League's power, it was feared.

Britain has been trying for weeks to keep Loyalist Spain from invoking the League covenant, it was learned, and was dismayed by the action of Foreign Minister Julio Alvarez Del Vayo.

MOSCOW, Nov. 28.—(INS)—Increasing her naval fighting equipment from three to sevenfold within four years Soviet Russia is pressing forward a great naval building program which will provide a complete modern navy equal to any problem of the future.

The revelation that the U. S. S. R. is growing into a sea power rivaling Germany or Japan was made today by Admiral Nikolai Orlov, the Soviet's premier naval commander, before the Congress of the Soviets in the Kremlin.

Since January, 1933, Admiral Orlov informed the cheering representatives of the Union has made the following astounding increases in her sea-fighting categories:

Submarines, multiplied seven times; warships, three times; coast artillery one and three-quarters times; naval aircraft, doubled; naval aviation, more than five times.

Find Warburton's Gun 750 Yards From Farm

Walter Groman, an instructor at the National Farm School, near Doylestown, yesterday found the gun, the accidental discharge of which had caused the death of Barclay H. Warburton, Jr., socially prominent Philadelphia, on Thanksgiving Day.

The gun lay among reeds in a marshy patch of ground about 750 yards east of Warburton's farm, three miles south of Doylestown. The walnut stock was broken along the grain as though it had given way under a man's weight. Both shells of the double-barreled weapon were discharged.

Groman said that he stumbled over the weapon. The broken portion of the stock clung to the remainder of the gun by a few slight splinters of wood. Groman immediately notified State Police and turned the gun over to them.

Police reconstructed the details leading up to the tragedy. They learned that a friend, just home from Paris, arrived at the victim's country home, "Saracen Farm," at 11.30 a. m. on Thursday. "Buzz" Warburton was still in bed. His friend said he had seen a handsome red-necked pheasant in the fields nearby.

Warburton dressed hastily, said he would not wait for breakfast, and left the house with the gun in search of the game bird.

About a half hour later, as he hunted for the pheasant, he wounded himself. Limping on as best he could with the aid of the gun, he fought his way back toward his home.

He was within 200 yards of the farm when his butler, Cecil James, heard his cries and saw him collapse. James carried him to the house whence he was removed to the hospital where he died.

22 SHOPPING DAYS UNTIL CHRISTMAS

Placing New Signs On Morrisville Street Corners

MORRISVILLE, Nov. 28.—In keeping with the policy adopted several years ago, Common Council is having 29 additional street signs placed on street intersections. Each year a certain sum is set aside in the budget for the signs and the work will be continued until all the streets have been marked.

The signs are an adjustable four-way criss-cross galvanized steel frame with vitreous porcelain enamel white letters and royal blue field. They will be placed at the following intersections: Crown street at East Palmer, East Franklin, East Hendrickson, East Hendrickson, East Maple, Fairview and Highland avenues.

COUPLE WED 50 YEARS AGO HAVE CELEBRATION

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Heath, Sr., Bath Road, Feted At Family Gathering

DINNER IS SERVED

A happy occasion was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Heath, Sr., Bath Road, Thanksgiving Day, in observance of their golden wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Heath were married in Dedham, Mass., November 25, 1886. A sister of the bride, Mrs. H. H. Brooks, who was matron of honor, was present to celebrate this occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Heath have six children and 20 grand-children, all being present but Edwin Hamilton, who sent a cablegram of greetings from South America. Mr. and Mrs. Heath were recipients of greetings from relatives and friends, as well as other gifts, and bouquets of flowers. The children and grandchildren presented to Mr. and Mrs. Heath a large basket containing 10 yellow chrysanthemums, and also gifts of money. A dinner was served to 39 guests. A four-tier wedding cake decorated in white and gold by Mrs. Arthur Hamilton, formed the table centerpiece. Around this were arranged four gold-tinted candles. Favors were flowers of cellophane.

Those attending: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brooks, Dedham, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Merrill, Chelmsford, Mass.; Miss Florence Pasholdt, Camden, N. J.; and the children and their families as follows: Mr. and Mrs. George Heath and daughters Ellen, Isabella, Florence and son George, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Heath and sons, Edwin, Joseph, Charles and daughter Mabel; Mr. and Mrs. Granville Heath and daughters Lucille, June, Violet and sons Kenneth and Granville, Mr. and Mrs. William DeVoe and sons Albert, Edwin and James, Bristol; Mr. and Mrs. Asa Smith and daughters Mildred and Charlotte, Cornwallis Heights; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hamilton and daughter Ruth, Dedham, Mass.

Violator Warned By Judge Hiram Keller

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 28.—"Obey the laws of the United States or go back to Poland; you are only a guest here anyway," President Judge Hiram H. Keller, of the Bucks County Courts, advised John Malecki, Pineville farmer, when the defendant pleaded guilty before him to a charge of unlawful manufacture and possession of alcohol and alcoholic liquid.

This was the second time that Malecki has been arrested and before the county court for violation of the liquor laws. He was arrested by agents of the State Liquor Control Board, who found a still and a quantity of liquor on his premises.

Malecki told Judge Keller that he made the liquor for his own use and to treat his friends.

A fine of $150 and costs was placed on Malecki and the defendant was placed on probation for two years with Sheriff Horace E. Gwinner as the probation officer.

The Grand Jury for the November criminal term ignored the bills against Israel Meltzer, Mrs. Mary Polk and Willie Chavis.

STUDENT REPRESENTATIVES OF BUCKS COUNTY SCHOOLS PARTICIPATE IN DISCUSSION HELD AT FALL MEETING OF BUCKS STUDENT COUNCIL

Seven Schools Represented At Meeting Held in Doylestown Last Tuesday

MANY SUBJECTS

Various Topics Are Given Consideration and Discussed From All Angles

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 28.—Student representatives of Quakertown, Bristol, Morrisville, Langhorne, Bensalem, Buckingham and Richboro participated in a panel discussion held at the Bucks County Student Council Association Fall meeting in the high school, here, Tuesday afternoon, at 3.30 o'clock.

William Hardy, of Buckingham High School, presided over the discussion in which Doylestown High School was represented by Doris VanBuskirk and Donald VanArtsdalen.

The names of the student and the schools and their individual topic follows:

John Boehr, Quakertown, "Does a student council need to start out with a constitution?"

George Brown, Bristol, "The student tribunal (or court) should be allowed to disappear."

Eleanor Fagan, Morrisville, "The student tribunal (or court) should not be allowed to disappear from the student council activities."

Bruce MacKenzie, Bensalem, "Activities in which the president of the student council can engage, such as being responsible for distributing all awards other than the diplomas given at graduation."

Doris VanBuskirk, Doylestown, "A program which the student council could sponsor to make incoming freshmen feel at home, such as meeting school leaders."

Harvey Crouthamel, Buckingham, "What the student council can do to foster or work toward honor study halls."

Benjamin Stark, Langhorne, "Ways of improving relationships between schools, such as exchange programs, various friendly acts during contests."

Charles Gallagher, Doylestown, "Activities, other than dancing which a social welfare (social activities) committee can carry on, such as providing

PREPARING COUNTY DATA FOR SCHOOL HISTORY

Corps of Research Workers and Writers Are at Work On the Subjects

TO BE VALUABLE ASSET

The people of Bucks county will be interested to learn that a corps of research workers and writers have been busy compiling a history of Bucks county for use in the public schools.

Under the direction of county superintendent, J. H. Hoffman, "this work has progressed to a point nearing completion, and when finished this new addition to the school curriculum, will fill a long felt need and will be hailed by many as a patriotic and progressive forward step in our educational program," it is stated.

The youth of Bucks county will step out into the world with a new conception of their fine heritage and a pride in their county for the notable part it has taken in the building of a great nation.

This work is being done for the sole benefit of the schools and no individual or organization may derive profit or commercialize the material submitted.

Many interested persons have contributed notes and facts of historical value which have been used in compiling this history. "There is still time for others who wish to participate in this fine community effort to send their material to the County Superintendent's office at Doylestown," says Mr. Hoffman.

"Documents and manuscripts of value will be returned."

Booher-Kendall Wedding Occurs On the Holiday

A pretty wedding ceremony was solemnized on Thursday at eight a. m., when Miss Florence Kendall, 907 Beaver street, became the bride of William Booher, Philadelphia, at St. Simeon's Protestant Episcopal Church, Philadelphia. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. DuBell, pastor of the church, before many friends.

The bride's costume was of sapphire blue velvet with matching accessories, and corsage of white roses. Miss Winifred Kendall, sister of the bride, wore carnation red velvet with matching accessories and corsage of tea roses.

The best man was John Smithy, Philadelphia. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride's mother was gowned in rust with matching accessories, and corsage of gardenias.

The happy couple left immediately for a honeymoon which will be spent in Bristol, Tenn. Upon their return they will reside in Bristol.

for the welcome of new pupils, looking up absent pupils."

Alexander Jazieson, Richboro, "Ways in which the forum method of discussing issues may be developed by the student council, as for example in presenting student issues to the student body. Particular issues which might be presented to the student body could profitably be included."

Donald VanArtsdalen discussed the same topic as Richboro.

Charles Gallagher welcomed the 61 students who represented high schools in the county.

Election of officers resulted as follows:

President, Mr. MacFarland, Bensalem; vice-president, Pauline Halde-man, Buckingham; secretary, Stanley Dick, Bristol; treasurer, Ernest Gamble, Langhorne.

Chairman of the arrangement committee, Charles Gallagher, and the sponsors were Miss Lamb, J. L. Halderman, Thomas J. Keating, all of the Doylestown school.

COMPLETE ALL PLANS FOR GREAT PREACHING MISSION

First Service To Be Held Here On Next Monday Evening

TO HAVE GROUP SINGING

With a splendid program, linking Bristol and Lower Bucks county to the Preaching Mission, now complete, it is expected that there will be a great outpouring of all the Protestant people to the services. The Mission opens in Philadelphia at Convention Hall on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. A caravan of 110 automobiles will come from Easton. All the eastern part of Pennsylvania is now united and interest is growing every hour. More than 500 communities in Bucks county are taking a definite part in the campaign to emphasize the message of Christianity for the world.

The upper section of Bucks county have their services centering in Doylestown and Perkasie. The services of Lower Bucks county centers in Bristol, where all meetings will be held in the Methodist Episcopal Church. After these central meetings many churches are planning to carry on in a series of meetings, either individually or in groups.

Music and singing is to feature the first mass meeting on Monday night in Bristol. Bishop Hobson of Ohio will preach, but in addition all choirs will sit together and sing under the direction of Andrew MacArthur. The American Legion will co-operate with the Bugle Corps marching through town and occupying a reserved section in the church. The congregational singing will be a special feature under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Bowman, a trained leader from Reading.

For the woman's mass meeting on Thursday at 2.30 p. m., Mrs. Mary Duhamel will have charge of the choirs while Mrs. Bowman will sing and lead the congregation. H. C. Jeffers and R. L. Holland will speak.

At the six p. m. Office-Bearers Luncheon, for Church and Sunday Schools, Charles H. Quigley will sing, and Dr. C. A. Hauser will speak. Some schools are paying the 50 cent fee for their teachers in order that none may miss this inspirational service.

At eight p. m., Thursday, the final mass meeting will have, and the massed choirs with special singing by Mrs. Bowman and Mr. Quigley and the address by Dr. Finley M. Wilson, D. D., of Philadelphia.

"These addresses set into the background of the great hymns and music of our faith will bring such heart-stirring emotions that no one will ever forget them. In view of the tragic state of the world and our own individual and national needs, this call of the Christian church should bring every man, woman and youth out of their homes to pack the temples of our faith to such overflowing that crowds will not be able to get in."

"What would be more appropriate on Monday and Thursday nights of next week than for us to close our theatres, lodges and societies during the hours of service. This would show a loyalty to those fundamentals which we profess with our lips and upon which alone a happy civilization can be built," states the Rev. Norman L. Davidson, pastor of the Bristol M. E. Church, and chairman of the local committee.

Two Injured Local Men Are Reported Improved

Favorable reports were received by relatives of James S. Fine and Clarence W. Winter, Mill street, to the effect that both of these local businessmen, who were injured in an automobile accident at Manahawkin, N. J., Thanksgiving Day, are improving.

Mr. Fine is reported as improving, and "holding his own." He sustained a fracture of the skull and concussion of the brain. Mr. Winter, who suffered broken ribs, is also improving.

The two are receiving treatment in Paul Kimball Hospital, Lakewood, N. J.

Former Bristol Woman Testifies in Famous Case

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 28.—Mrs. Lily Giordano, of Newtown, Pa., told a Federal Court jury yesterday she sent Anna Ware, 19-year-old unwed servant girl, to St. Louis to give birth to the child which became the central figure in the "Gift of God" baby case.

The former employer of Miss Ware was a witness for the Government in the trial of Mrs. Nellie Tipton Munch and three co-defendants on a charge they used the mails to further a baby hoax on Dr. Marsh Pitzman, wealthy and socially prominent St. Louis physician.

Miss Ware's baby, born here August 17, 1935, was taken from her under a pre-natal adoption agreement, the Government alleged, and was presented the next day as the newly-born son of Mrs. Munch and her husband, Dr. Ludwig O. Munch.

The indictment said Mrs. Munch privately accused Dr. Pitzman of being the father "with the intent and purpose" of inducing him to turn over "his money, property and effects." Dr. Munch, Wilfred Jones, an attorney, and Mrs. Helen Beroyser, a friend, were named as participants in the purported plot.

The baby involved was taken from Mrs. Munch and restored to Miss Ware by the St. Louis Court of Appeals last December.

Mrs. Giordano was formerly a resident of Bristol.

Vincenzo Dilanni Dies After A Brief Illness

Vincenzo Dilanni, husband of Mary Josephine (DiLorenzo) Di Ianni, died at his home, 220 Washington street, this morning, after a brief period of illness. He had been a resident of Bristol for 30 years.

The late Mr. Dilanni was affiliated with the Italian Beneficial Society and also the Sons of Italy.

Survivors include his wife, and the following children: Mrs. Rose Fiadino; Carrie, Lillian, Anna, Frank, Charles and Pasquale Dilanni.

Funeral arrangements are in charge of Galzerano.

LONE STAR GIRL SCOUTS TO COLLECT, REPAIR TOYS

Andalusia Troop Plans To Render Service To The Community

TO GIVE X'MAS PLAY

ANDALUSIA, Nov. 28.—Members of the Lone Star Troop of Girl Scouts here plan a community service for the Christmas season. Toys will be collected and repaired and then distributed to needy families in Andalusia. Girls who are working for their first class scout rating will be in charge of the community service.

Decision was also reached this week to hold a Christmas play. Try-outs for the play, "Going Home For Christmas," will be held next week. Betty Rahn is in charge of typing the parts which will be distributed to those desiring to take part in the one-act comedy.

Two girls, formerly members of the now disbanded Cornwallis Heights Girl Scout organization, were accepted into the Lone Star Troop this week. Frances Stuhltrager and Peggy States are the new members, and it is expected that two more girls will join next week. Announcement was made that Joan Hicks, one of the members of the Troop, has severed her connections with the Lone Star Troop when she moved to a new residence in Lawnside a few days ago.

Those present at the meeting included: Dorothy Ferguson, Peggy Armstrong, Gloria Freas, Ethel Juliff, Margaret Pickersgill, Ada Pickersgill, Doris Hibbs, Peggy States, Frances Stuhltrager, Betty Rahn, Barbara Engle, Jeanne Stackhouse, Elizabeth Anderson, Helen Still, Muriel Hor-nickel, Clara Fries, Gladys Cragg, Lois Lange, and May Early.

St. Thomas Parish House Is Nuptial Ceremony Scene

CROYDON, Nov. 28.—A wedding took place at St. Thomas Aquinas parish house, Thanksgiving Day at three p. m., when Miss Catherine Paulsworth and Robert E. McCarthy were united in marriage. The Rev. Father Diamond officiated.

The bride wore a gown of dark blue taffeta, and a small hat to match. She carried white chrysanthemums. The bridesmaid, Miss Sarah Paulsworth, sister of the bride, wore a rust-colored dress and hat to match, and carried yellow chrysanthemums. The best man was John McCarthy.

A reception was held at the bride's home.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCarthy will make their home at 1318 West Butler street, Philadelphia.

Goes To Work Five Hours Ahead of Time

EDGELY, Nov. 28.—How would you like to get up at 1.30 instead of six o'clock in the morning; feed the chickens, and go to work only to find that you were five and a quarter hours ahead of time?

That was the experience a well-known resident here had today. Fred is taking a lot of razzing about it, too.

It appears that a child in the household last night set the alarm for 1.30 instead of six o'clock. The youngster's father goes to work at 6.45. So he thinking that it was six o'clock got out of bed, dressed, prepared his breakfast, fed the chickens and started for work.

He thought things were not just right as he passed a tap-room and found it all illuminated, but on second thought imagined that perhaps there had been a party. He continued on to his place of employment in Bristol, where upon his arrival he found the gates locked tight. Then he learned the correct time.

GRAND JURY IN REPORT SUGGESTS IMPROVEMENTS

Group is Generally Satisfied With Condition and Operations of County Prison

RETURNS 30 TRUE BILLS

Suggests Metal Ceilings and Purchase of Cotton Felt Mattresses

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 28.—Numerous suggestions for improvement to some of the county buildings and praise for other departments of the county government was voiced by the Grand Jury or the November term of criminal court of Bucks county in the report submitted yesterday.

The Grand Jury had 34 bills before it, and returned 30 true bills and four not true bills. The foreman of the Grand Jury was William F. Taylor, Amberville artist.

Notwithstanding their general satisfaction of the condition and operations of the Bucks County Prison, the Grand Jury made the following recommendations:

That the walls and ceiling in the kitchen, now peeling off and requiring new surface, should be replaced with a metal ceiling. The position of a rap door in the kitchen now, should be changed to remove an obnoxious fire hazard. Metal lath on the walls of the kitchen was also suggested.

That the laundry drying room partly occupied by an unused bake oven should be changed. The oven, they suggest, should be removed and sold or junk or removed at no expense.

They noted that the new cells in the prison have a window in the walls of each providing better ventilation. They suggest the old cells also be equipped in the same manner. They found the women's quarters entirely satisfactory.

The Grand Jury recommended that he straw mattresses now in use in the men's quarters be replaced by moderate priced cotton felt mattresses and a sufficient number of water-proof anti-stain covers such as are used in various other institutions be purchased or the protection of the mattresses.

That the benches now used for chapel service in the Prison be replaced by the purchase of 36 folding chairs.

The Grand Jury found the inmates of the Bucks County Home well cared for and the visit to the Home proved a pleasant event. In the County Home he Grand Jury obviously found one happy individual. This man proudly

CALL TO CONQUEST

Neither the economy of scarcity nor defeatist theory has any part in the philosophy presented by Wheeler McMillen, farm publication editor who spoke at the National Grange meeting in Columbus, Ohio. To the American farmer Mr. Millen offered a stimulating challenge to continue the "agricultural conquest of America."

Mr. McMillen made it clear that he has no patience with the philosophy of "adjustment and defeat" which assumes that expansion of wealth by American agriculture is finished—that because our foreign markets are greatly diminished and our farm production in some lines is in excess of profitable demand, the farmer simply must produce less.

Against this hopeless theory, Mr. McMillen urged his "philosophy of advance," calling for development of agricultural production in new lines to meet new industrial needs.

The philosophy of advance, he continued, "says that instead of recklessly exhausting the nation's irreplaceable supplies of petroleum under the ground, agriculture shall through the medium of power alcohol be permitted to share in the tremendous market for motor fuels. It points to a market for the products of from 15,000,000 to 30,000,000 acres if only 10 per cent of motor fuel requirements are met with agricultural alcohol. Two million acres, now crowding surplus crops into market places, might well be growing beet and cane sugar and levulose for an American market now supplied from foreign sources. The philosophy of advance is not content that these 48 states must be limited as now, to producing a bare 28 per cent of the sugar needed by 130,000,000 people. Instead of sending to Canada and Northern Europe each year for $200,000,000 worth of pulpwood and paper products, our paper supply should come almost entirely from 8,000,000 acres of pine along the coastal plains where the opportunity to enjoy that wealth is sadly needed."

If American farmers—or a substantial proportion of them—can become imbued with Mr. McMillen's pioneer zeal, the "agricultural conquest" of our land well might open an era of long-sustained national prosperity.

STILL MIGHTY MAN

Some people think of the blacksmith's trade as belonging to a dim and distant past. They are all wrong and Raymond Barrick of Shminton, West Virginia, can prove it. Barrick is no venerable survivor of the full-bearded era of blacksmithing. He is only 44 years old, although he has put in 34 years at the anvil, having learned his trade at the age of ten.

Barrick's firm, says Raymond Barrick, Fray Shminton is in the mining region and a part of Barrick's work consists of sharpening miners' tools. But that isn't his principal activity.

"Last year," says Barrick, "I shod between 6,000 horses at my shop and worked on about 2,000 in barns."

There's money, Mr. Barrick believes, in this Horse and Buggy Age.

It cost Bette Davis of the films half a year's salary to learn that in England a contract is still a contract if the party of the second part is a blonde.

Behind the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD—Before the Errol Flynn-Lili Damita separation was even in print, the first embarrassing meeting of the two occurred.

Flynn went to the Cafe Lamaze for dinner with some friends. About 10 minutes later, Lili showed up. In perfect innocence, Marcel Lamaze ushered her in to Flynn's table.

It was a regular Lubitch tableau.

Flynn met it with a smile. Lili exploded: "No! no! no! I am not with him."

Lamaze just turned redder and redder.

The turn of events should mean a bargain in fishing tackle for somebody. In preparation for his trip to the south seas, Flynn had laid in a stock that even Zane Grey might not be ashamed of. Now, he has marital troubles on his hands, not to mention the money he'd lose by staying all those months away from the screen. For, if I am not telling a secret, the Irish actor has just been given a new contract by Warner Brothers that ups his salary to a really fancy figure. It starts, on the new basis, as soon as he is willing to go to work. And the south seas are still going to be there next year.

Plenty of excitement out at Pickfair over Buddy Rogers' father jumping the gun and announcing the engagement. Mary Pickford's sense of humor prevailed, however, and she obligingly discussed plans. They do not include a permanent residence at Pickfair. Buddy is looking for a ranch down towards the beach where he can raise horses. It is a good guess that Pickfair will be leased, or it may even wind up as a park or museum. There has been talk for some time about the city of Beverly Hills taking it over.

LOVE'S LITANY by Hazel Livingston

SYNOPSIS

Christine Cooper, 17 and lovely, is the daughter of the rich and eccentric Adolphus Cooper, who made his money in the Klondike, never speaks of the past, and hates cities. While he dreams of the great things he will do for Christine by and by, she grows up with the boys and girls of the mountain community where Adolphus has built his home, an innocent and adventurous young tomboy. Left alone in the isolated ranch house for a few days she is visited by a childhood chum and sweetheart, Gene Dubois, who discovers that while he has been away in the city, the little Cooper girl has been growing into a surprisingly attractive young woman. Swept off her feet by his sudden impetuous love making Christine feels that this is the great moment of her life. Morning finds her still with Gene, and childishly sure that her father will approve the marriage, and buy them a ranch of their own.

CHAPTER IV

"You say sweet things, Gene. Sometimes I think you ought to be a poet, though, of course, your painting."

"Yes, the painting," he interrupted bitterly. His dark eyes narrowed, his whole face darkened. "The painting and the poetry—very grand to talk about. But all I'll ever be is a dairy-hand, unless I can get another job in a gas station sometime. What did you have to bring that up for? We came here to get away from all that!"

Surely this was the time to speak about the mine and the ranch. Her eyes, that were like deep gray-green water with the sun shining through it, were bright with love and tenderness.

Already she could see Dolph Cooper leaning at them from his favorite wicker chair on the front porch. "Well, make up your mind, young man—do you want to settle down on a ranch, or are you going to be a mining man? It don't make a dang bit of difference to me, just so's Christine's satisfied."

She could see the home they'd have. A ranch-house, broad-verandaed like the Cooper place, but smaller, more rustic—more the way it used to be before Aunt Nettie came. She could see Gene coming up the path to dinner, not grumpily, the way Elbie Dint's husband did, but laughing, and eager. She could almost see the wedding ring on her finger, almost hear him say, "And how's the baby?"

There would be a baby, of course. A boy. The first one should be a boy, though Dad would sort of like his first grand-child to be named after him, and Adolphus is such a joke name. Maybe a girl would be better.

She smiled at Gene, half apologetically, because she was so far ahead of him in her thoughts. "Gene, I know how you've felt about things, but it won't be that way any more. I'm going to ask Dad to buy some ranch land for us, and you can paint in the evenings—and lots of times—and Gene! I don't mean a dairy, darling! I mean a—a ranch! You know, with vegetables and turkeys. Don't you like turkeys? And we might raise horses, and some small stock, but if you'd rather prospect—"

"Do you mind letting me know what you're talking about?" "Dad will do it, Gene! . . . Oh! Do you mean he couldn't afford it this year? He does talk about losing money, but still he always has lots. I really think—"

Gene kicked a long log that was falling from the dying fire. He turned back and faced her. "When you stick to your old man's dough you know what you're talking about."

"That old man of yours took PLENTY out of the Klondike, and he does more than let's on, now. He's in with some of those big bankers in San Francisco, and he's in a whole lot of things he keeps his name out of—sooner that I give a rap about that. All rich men are kind of shady in their dealings—"

"Oh, I don't mean anything, Christie. You know how people talk about him. He's O. K. I guess—"

"O. K.! He's wonderful! He's the kindest, grandest—"

"Sure he's all right, honey. I—I like him, myself. But—now don't interrupt. I know how you feel about him. I said he was all right, didn't I? But you've got to promise me on your word of honor that you'll never let him know there's anything between us, and as for asking him to do anything for me—"

"I'd like to know why I can't ask my own father!"

"Good lord, Christie, you're not an infant! If he ever got wind—"

She faced him, blazing with sudden anger and fear. "Are you telling me you don't want me to tell my own father that we love each other?"

"You don't want me to tell my own father we love each other?"

"Honey! I mean not now! Not until I get on my feet, so that I—Christie, don't look at me like that! Listen, honey—I love you! You know I love you! But don't you see that if your Dad found out—that he—that he'd be pretty sore at both of us? You're an awfully young girl, Christie, and . . . The fact is, I sure wouldn't want him to know until I'm more in a position to marry than I am now. . . . Christie, CAN'T you understand? You don't want your old man to take a shot at me, do you?"

He tried to laugh. He tried to picture old Adolphus Cooper after him with a shotgun, and succeeded so well that the laugh died in his throat. "Listen, Christie, you've got to trust me. I'm older. I know more about things than you do. I love you, and I wouldn't tell you not to say anything if it wasn't right for us, would I? You don't want to spoil our chances of getting married and being happy together, do you? I'll make you so happy, honey—I'll more than make it all up to you—"

She made a small, hopeless gesture. It was some minutes before she could trust herself to speak. "I—I didn't understand how you'd feel about it. It's all right. We'll forget about it."

It was all over. There'd be no wedding, no rustic ranch-house, no dark-eyed baby, no life together.

"Where are you going?"

"Oh, just to the creek, to wash my hands."

She slid down the pebbly incline to the creek bed, washed carefully in the clear, cold water. Then she wet her comb and slicked her fair, tum-bled hair back from her face, and fastened it securely with bobby pins back of her ears.

He thought that she looked older, and incredibly more sensible that way. But different, too . . .

He had a distinct sense of loss, of losing something and someone that had been terribly dear to him. He wanted to speak of it, to explain his stand again, but no words came.

The five dogs, Letty and her four pups, which were black like Sheriff Grieve's black Belgian shepherd, but small headed and long tailed like their less aristocratic mother, had stopped their frivolous chasing of squirrels they knew they never could catch. They came and sat very close to the girl, and they seemed to be waiting, too.

The little Tin Soldier has marched away

"Our Billy! Twenty-one? . . . Why, I just can't believe it. I can remember when he had to stand on tiptoe to reach the cookies on the table."

But chubby legs will lengthen, and a small boy strides into manhood. Soon he'll be buying a ring and they'll come out of a church with shy faces and shining eyes. As you did—how many years ago?

Their path will be a little easier than yours . . . how you've toiled to make that possible! And they'll have more outside help too. Advertising has come forward in the last few years, and brought a hundred servants to the modern home.

Their road will be marked with familiar names. They'll choose the reliable, advertised trade-marks . . . whether in breakfast foods, a radio, or a new car. They'll know that an advertised product has to be an honest product—its honesty proved by thousands of buyers before them.

They'll take on new responsibilities—just as you two did! Advertising will help them meet these new problems a little easier, a bit better. And they'll come out, all right . . . you needn't worry about them!

ALL IN THE WEEK'S WORK

RADIOS, PAPERS, SONGS AND DANCES, ON THE MARCH OF TIME ADVANCES!

In the Far North, toward the midnight sun. An avalanche rolls down the mountainside. The mountain god trembles and claims his own. And Juneau mourns the victims of the slide. Thus does man conquer snow and ice and rock. And the place conquerers must die: The unsung heroes of a far-flung land, CLAIMING NEW SEAS, NEW LANDS FOR YOU AND I.

Alaska again. The Western shipping strike. Consents to send supplies to the Far North. So they'll have Thanksgiving, a week too late. In spite of stubbornness and strikers' wrath. The ships pull out from lovely Puget Sound. The docks in far Seattle hum again. And load on load of food and clothing goes OFF TO THE LAND WHERE ICE AND SNOW REIGN.

Germany and Japan league. France mourns a left-wing suicide. Communism and Nazi power. Toward a showdown surely ride. Let's hope the cross-roads is not war. And pray that we may stay. Free from entanglements and leagues. LEADING TO BLOODSHED, THE SAME OLD WAY.

Fair and cold and true to form. Thanksgiving dawned for all. For some the family reunion. For some the pizzikin ball. Full many heartfelt thanks went up. And many smiled with cheer. Many a home was warm and glad. WHERE MISERY REIGNED LAST YEAR!

Let's hope, before another day. Of thanks for blessings rolls around. Content, a job, a turkey too. For everyone will have been found. Let's hope that Spain will be at peace. That Japs and Chinks have laid aside. The sword. That North, South, East and West, CAN SAY, "FOR PEACE WE THANK THEE, LORD!" —GRETA DRUMM.

1 tablespoon tomato ketchup
1 teaspoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
Add one cup cold water to clam juice, mix with above ingredients, chill and serve.

Roast Turkey

Dress, singe and wash turkey. Stuff with dressing, sew opening together; tie wings close to body, spread with butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place turkey on its back on rack in roasting pan. Roast in moderate oven until tender, allowing 15 to 25 minutes to the pound. Baste with one-half cup butter melted in one-half cup boiling water. Continue basting every 15 minutes with fat in the pan. After turkey has roasted one hour on its back place on its breast to finish roasting, turning from side to side to brown evenly.

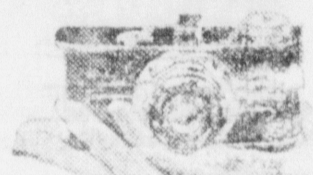

Corn and Green-Pepper Stuffing

½ cup minced onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup melted shortening
½ cup chopped celery
2 No. 2 cans corn
½ teaspoon sage
½ teaspoon thyme
¾ cups stale bread crumbs
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper

Saute the onions, the green pepper and celery in a little of the melted shortening until soft but not browned.

DOG RESCUED
ALPINE, N. J. — (INS) — For three days the cries of a dog coming from Palisades cliffs were heard by a watchman at the Palisades Interstate Park before he could spot the dog. He notified state police, who lowered a man down to a ledge where the officer found a large Irish wolfhound. A rope was tied around the dog and he was hauled up, taken to police headquarters and fed. At the foot of the cliffs the body of a female dog of the same breed was found.

Fighting a Gridiron War

By BURNLEY

Philadelphia's gigantic Municipal Stadium, which seats over 100,000 spectators, will be the scene this week-end of that always colorful pigskin classic, the Army-Navy grid warfare.

This intercollegiate strife between Uncle Sam's military institutions is always savagely fought, and is usually a very good football game regardless of the comparative strength of the two eleven's. The records always run for our good friend Sweeney when these ancient rivals clash on the white-striped football turf.

Navy, which dropped three important games in a row earlier in the season, is not nearly as weak as these results might indicate. The Middies outplayed both Yale and Princeton, only to lose these games through bad breaks. They played the burly and powerful Penn veterans to a standstill, but weren't able to stave off defeat. Rightly figuring that this streak of adverse luck couldn't continue indefinitely, the Sailors played for the breaks against Notre Dame, and Lady Luck finally showed them her smile.

Army's record is almost the reverse of the Annapolis crew, as the West Pointers were off to a flying start, only to taste defeat for the first time at the hands of the much-beaten Colgate team.

Backfield stars are expected to sparkle in Philly today with Army's elusive Monk Meyer and speedy Jim Craig pitting their skill against the adept booting and inspired running of Sneed Schmidt and Navy Bill Ingram, 2nd. (Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

ORGANIZE BUCKS LEAGUE FOR FOOTBALL IN 1937

A Bucks County Independent Football League for 1937 was formed Thursday night at a meeting of the managers and directors of the various football teams of Bucks County. The meeting was held in the St. Ann's Athletic Association building with the following teams represented: Andalusia, St. Ann's, Bristol Recreation, Doylestown Moose, Quakertown A. A., and the Sellersville Green Jackets.

Thomas Juno, Bristol, was elected temporary chairman of the association. James Welsh, Doylestown, was appointed to draw up a temporary set of by-laws and rules and regulations. It was suggested that the league have blanket insurance to cover every player in the circuit. The teams of the league will carry 25 players and no additions being made after the roster is turned in.

Managers and directors present at the meeting were: Sellersville, Russell K. Shelly and John Pink; St. Ann's, Thomas Juno and William E. Dougherty; Bristol Recreation Center, Franklin Parr; Quakertown, John Shelly; Doylestown, James Welsh; and Andalusia, Joseph Diamanti and Calvin Freas.

The next meeting of the loop will be held in Doylestown, December 15th.

AS THE CROW FLIES.

SOMETIMES the longest way is the quickest way. But many of life's convenient short-cuts are well worth knowing. Take the ever-present problem of buying things. If you had to trot around from store to store for every purchase, you wouldn't get much accomplished—and you'd be sure to miss some of the best values. But you don't do it—you take the short-cut, by reading the advertisements in this newspaper.

In the advertising columns, you'll find a panorama of who has what to sell, and where the wisest buying can be done. You can make your choice in a few minutes' time—based on well-known trade-marks, trusted brand-names, accurate descriptions, even photographs—and go straight to the right place to buy it. No lost time, no indecision. The advertising pages of this newspaper show you the shortest short-cuts. Read them regularly. Make every minute and dollar do more.
